New software to benefit property search service

Market-leading software has been adopted by a Worcestershire business premises service to allow accurate, instant updates to its extensive property database.

Worcestershire Property Search (WPS), which helps businesses looking for premises in the county, has introduced the market leading Commercial Agency software Agency Pilot to make updates to its 1,000 strong property database quicker and easier.

Agency Pilot allows the automatic transfer of all new and updated property details directly from the property agents to the search database, cancelling out the need for agents to send through details manually.

Details from all Worcestershire agents who are signed up to the system can be updated automatically and uploads include any photographs and images plus the agent's own PDF brochure.

Donna Harding, who manages the property search service on behalf of Worcestershire County Council and the districts, said the new software would be a huge benefit for the system and its users.

“The adoption of these solutions removes any extra work for agents as well as ensuring that our business premises database is accurate and fully up to date.”

Worcestershire County Council's technology partner and provider of Property Pilot, Alcium Software, also supplies a free content management system Property Pilot through which agents can keep online property details up to date.

Any agents who would like to find out more about the new software can call Donna at WPS on 0845 641 1445.
